The doctor is IN” is a kind of help desk that will provide mentoring for students to mid-career faculty at all manner of institutions. The format is like speed-mentoring—specialists will counsel others on such topics as:

- what are appropriate fonts for CVs;
- how to say no (nicely) to more service;
- how to interpret readers’ comments after an article is returned;
- what are good venues for grants;
- how does one write a job letter to a 4/4 institution when one is a graduate student at an R1 school;
- what are ways to do or incorporate research at teaching institutions;
- how to choose a journal for an article;
- how to track citations of one’s work;
- how does one write an attractive book proposal—and for which kind of press;
- what kinds of publishing and scholarly venues are helpful for people with access needs;
- what are allied professions other than university teaching,
- and etc., etc., etc.

Visit our table in the Book Exhibit area during Exhibit hours.

If you are interested in offering your services and expertise, know of colleagues who would be good resources, would like to suggest topics for mentoring, or would like to sign up for mentoring when we complete the list of experts, please contact Rebecca Shapiro at rshapiro@citytech.cuny.edu.

UCLA bus departs from the Westin Bonaventure Hotel at 5:00 p.m. (Free bus transportation is limited to the first 50 people who register for this excursion)

Free for ASECS conference participants and their guests; please register by 6 March as capacity is limited.

This excursion is hosted by the UCLA William Andrews Clark Memorial Library and Center for 17th- & 18th-Century Studies. It includes a private guided tour of the elegant Clark Library and presentations by the library staff about the collections. Following the tour, guests will enjoy a special reception. The bus will depart the Clark Library at 7:00 p.m. and return to the hotel.

For details about bus or rail transportation options, please visit www.metro.net

Free parking is available for those traveling by car or taxi. For directions or a Google map, visit <http://www.clarklibrary.ucla.edu/visit>

About the Clark Library

The Clark is an off-campus rare book library specializing in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. It also has a renowned collection centering on Oscar Wilde and his era and significant holdings of modern fine printing and Western Americana. Other collections include French literature, a major collection devoted to Pietro Aretino, and a recent major gift strengthened considerably the Clark's holdings of sixteenth- and early seventeenth-century books. Currently the library has about 110,000 books, as well as manuscripts, archives, maps, prints, and other material. Bequeathed to UCLA in 1934 by William Andrews Clark, Jr. (1877-1934), a prominent book collector and philanthropist, this extensive collection is housed in an historical building standing on the spacious grounds of the old Clark estate in the West Adams district of Los Angeles (near downtown L.A.).

How to RSVP

To register, please send an email to c1718cs@humnet.ucla.edu with "ASECS-Clark Excursion" in the subject line, and include the name, email, and phone number for each guest that will attend and indicate whether you need a bus reservation. The free bus transportation is limited to 50 people and reservations are provided on a first-come, first-served basis by email. The RSVP deadline is 6 March.
